Hong Kong attracts visitors all year round with warm weather. However, rainstorms and high prices can discourage tourists. The most popular time to go is the national holiday during January, May and October, when people come across to celebrate festivals, which increases visitors and prices. Summers are hot and humy, and while hotel prices are falling, airfare prices are still quite high. In winter, the weather is cool and dry, and there are discounts on accommodation and airfare.high season: October to November, late January to February, April-Maywood season: December to mid-January, June to August season: March, SeptemberWeak information On the subtropical climate, Hong Kong experiences wet (spring and summer) and dry (autumn and winter) seasons. Autumn brings pleasant conditions, with average highs of 87, while winter sees cooler temperatures, dropping to an average high of 76 degrees. Spring temperatures average 85 degrees, while summer reaches highs of 92 degrees with high humidity. Typhoon season begins in the summer and can last until early autumn. Crowd InformationHong Kong will be very busy during two major festivals, Chinese New Year (falling from late January to mid-February) and Golden Weeks in May and October. Chinese New Year is a great holiday for the city and many come to celebrate. The Golden Weeks attracts mostly local travelers, and hotels tend to be about 80 percent full. Closure InformationMost hotels, shops and attractions are open all year round. However, many facilities are close to Chinese New Year and the next two days, as many families take time out to celebrate together. When to save the most expensive time to visit china new year and golden week. Visitors can save money from late November to January, especially during Hong Kong WinterFest, when a range of shopping and dining promotions are available. HONG KONG -- Markets in Hong Kong and Japan fell Monday over heightened U.S. recessionary fears, but China and India, the less mature emerging market giants, continue to buck the bearish trend by making modest gains. The Hang Seng recovered half of its morning losses by closing, but fell 340 points, or 1.2%, to 27,179, while China's Shanghai Composite Index rose 31 points, or 0.6%, to 5,393. The Shanghai Composite Index was trading at 161.4 billion yuan, or $22.2 billion, up from 2.5% in October 2006, when the market reached a record high of 108 points, or 0.5%, and reached an all-time high of 20,795. Indian shares led higher ICIICI Bank (IBN) - Get Report, which jumped 4.7% to 1,285 rupees, after investors were looking cheaply for the day's early dip. In Taiwan, the Taiex plunged 338 points, 4% to 7,883, traders said there were unloading heavy positions in electronics stocks such as Hon Hai Precision (HNNHPP) and Taiwan's Semiconductor Manufacturing (TSM) - Get Report, in anticipation of weaker orders, Hon Hai Precision fell 6.3%, to T$171.50, while Taiwanese semiconductor manufacturing plunged 7%, to T$55.80. South Korea's Kospi fell in line with other Asian markets, down 1.8% to 1,831. Hong Kong is more likely to benefit from China and more likely to be harmed by the United States right now, says Richard Lee, an analyst at Core Pacific Yamaichi in Hong Kong. In China, you're dealing with another group of investors who are more concerned about China as well and who think the economy can benefit from the Olympic Games. The biggest losers in Hong Kong were commodity stocks as the price of gold fell $862.10 an ounce vs. $863.20 on Friday, and crude oil, which lost 0.6%, to $97.33, by the end of Asian trading. PetroChina (PTR) - Get report has soothed 2.3% to HK$13.86, while shares in Sinopec Shanghai Petrochemical (SHL) fell 3.4% to HK$11.26, after posting big gains last week. Gold miners Zijin Mining (ZIJMF) and Sino Gold(SIOGF) plunged 3%, from HK$13.04, and 3.6%, to HK's $50.95, respectively. Financial stocks also fared badly in fear of the global effects of Friday's U.S. Jobs data. Hang Seng Bank (HSNGY) fell 1.9% to HK$155.70, while parent HSBC Holdings (HBC) fell 1.8%, to a 2-year low of HK$127.80, and China Life Insurance (LFC) - Get report slipped to report at 2.7%, with HK at $38.60. Real estate stocks recovered from the afternoon session on rumors that the U.S. Federal Reserve could cut interest rates by as much as 50 basis points by the end of January. Conglomerate Swire Pacific (SWRAY) jumped 3.6% to HK's $111.8, while Cheung Kong (CHEUY) rose 1.9% to HK's $147, and sound Lung Properties (HLPPY) clawed back losses nearly 1% lower at HK$34.15. Shares related to China have also been isolated from the day-to-day sale. Rail company MTR Corp (MTRJY) jumped 9.1% to HK$34.90, as Chinese rail companies pushed higher on China Railway, which rose 2.1%, to HK$11.60, and was the day's most actively traded stock. China Railway has risen to reports that the company has won 22 billion yuan, or $3 billion, from undisclosed contracts on land. The home capital sits on the sidelines as well as foreign capital, which is still awaiting U.S. subprime stabilization, says Jackson Wong, investment manager at Tanrich Securities in Hong Kong. Chinese consumer stocks and Hong Kong real estate stocks are performing better than hang seng overall until the volume picks up. Hang Seng's volume is HK$113.5 billion, or $14.6 billion, up from $99.8 billion, or $12.8 billion on Friday. Still, Wong says that the volumes will have to reach HK$150 billion ($19.2 billion) per day before they are considered aggressive and significant buying has hit the market. Core Pacific Yamaichi says that the Hang Seng continues to trade between a band of 25,000 points and 28,000 points for the To. In China, shares are widely acquired, except for bank stocks, which have fallen in profit-taking, and Air China (AIRYY) and China Eastern Airlines (CEA) - Get Report, which are down 1%, at 28.89 yuan, and flat, at 20.63 yuan, after reports circulated that shareholders in the China East would reject the $920 million share sale of Singapore Airlines (SINGF) and Temasek on Tuesday. If the deal is rejected, Air China will make a counteroffer, the company announced yesterday. In Japan, the Nikkei hit a fresh 17-month low for the second straight session, ending 190 points, or 1.3% lower, at 14,500. Friday's Wall Street sale price shook large Asian indexes the most and a strong yen. The yen strengthened 0.5% against the dollar in Asian trading to 109.44, but is still weaker than the benchmark 110. Nintendo (NTDOY) led the sales, shedding 5.7% to 59,900 yen despite reports in Japanese gaming magazine Enterbrain that the Wii outsold Sony's Playstation 3 over 3-to-1 in Japan over the holidays. The magazine said that the Wii sold 774,123 units vs. 232,421 units on the Playstation. Shares of Sony (SNE) - Get Report rose 0.7% to 5,830 bargain hunting, however. Among other exporters, Kobe Steel (KBSTY) lost 0.3% to 346 yen, while Honda (HMC) - Get Report, slipped 0.8% to 3,570 yen, but Canon (CAJ) - Get Report followed Sony's lead, rising 0.2% to 4,950 yen. The Nikkei Weekly reported this weekend that Japan's share of GDP fell 4%, to $4.4 trillion, and that the country's share of growth in terms of the global economy is now at a 24-year low. Unlike the rest of the world, it also predicted fears of deflation in 2008. Daniel M. Harrison is a business journalist specializing in European and emerging markets, especially in Asia. Citizens of the United States, The United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, Ireland, Canada and the European Union are allowed to enter Hong Kong without a visa. All you need is your passport. (When you enter Hong Kong you get a stamp or sticker saying you can enter without a visa. Save this because you will need it to get a Chinese visa.) If you know in advance that you want to go to China together on your trip to Hong Kong, you can get a visa to enter China from a Chinese embassy in your own country well in advance. But if you are a spontaneous type and decide that you want a visit to China while you are in Hong Kong or the Chinese Embassy in your own country it is difficult for you to visit, you can get a visa to enter China from Hong Kong. An easy way to avoid a visa to enter China is to do so while transporing to a third country, and China lasts only a short time. You can spend up to 72 hours in China without a visa if you travel from one country to another and at a large Chinese airport. You must have documentation for aircraft, train or boat tickets continuation of the journey, which shall be held within the 72-hour time limit. If you pass through the Shanghai-Jiangsu-Zhejiang region or the Beijing-Tianjin-Hebei region, you can stay up to 144 hours without a visa, and during this time you can move between the three cities in the region. Just like a 72-hour free transit visa, you'll need transportation tickets that show you leaving China within the 144-hour timeframe. The best and easiest way to get a Chinese visa to Hong Kong is through a visa agency. You will find many visa agencies in Hong Kong, but the most recommended are china travel service (CTS) and Forever Bright. To get a Chinese tourist visa to Hong Kong, you will need several documents. If you do not have all of these documents, you will have great difficulty getting a visa. A travel itinerary that includes back-and-forth tickets to and from China Arrival and departure dates and places you plan to visit Photocopies of all hotel reservations for the duration of your stay in ChinaThe photocopy of the front main pages of the passport, which include photo and informationThe passport photoThe photocopy of the arrival stamp or sticker that you received when entering Hong KongA visa application form (it can be found and completed by the visa agency) The price of a Chinese visa in Hong Kong depends on both your citizenship and how soon you need a visa. Usually about four working days to get a visa, and if you need it sooner, you'll have to pay extra. Prices vary with visas regularly, so get in touch with the agency you plan to use in advance to be sure of your current cost.
